

For shipping purposes, certain CW products are classified as hazardous materials due to their flammability. These include all fragrance oils, natural essential oils, fragrance ingredients, and alcohol-based products such as inks and bases (e.g., perfume, diffuser, and fabric mist bases).

CW can only ship products classified as hazardous materials (HAZMAT) via ground freight service within the volume requirements of a dealership order.

For overseas customers, it is important to note that the responsibility and liability for international shipment of hazardous goods lie entirely with the customer. While CW will package these products in compliance with ORM-D (Other Regulated Materials–Domestic) standards suitable for ground transportation, shipment beyond that—especially internationally—must be handled by the customer.

Typically, these products are shipped to a freight forwarder designated by the customer, who is certified to repackage and export hazardous materials in accordance with relevant international regulations.

All costs related to the shipping, handling, and repackaging of hazardous goods for overseas delivery are the sole responsibility of the customer.
